

GET STARTED ON AN IN-DEMAND CAREER.

MAGNETIC RESONANCE IMAGING

Associate of Applied Science

Magnetic Resonance includes diagnostic medical procedures that use a strong magnetic field, radio waves and computer applications to produce medical images of anatomical structures inside the body. For the first year of the program, students receive didactic instruction in the classroom and apply what they learn in a fully functional MRI simulation lab. For the second year of the program, students continue to take classes at the Toledo area campus while gaining over 1,150 hours of clinical education at a number of regional clinical facilities.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES FOR GRADUATES

According to the US Department of Labor Statistics, the job outlook for Magnetic Resonance Imaging Technologists from 2012 - 2022 will increase 21% which is faster than average. Career advancement opportunities exist in education, administration, research, and in commercial companies as education/application specialists, sales representatives, and technical advisors.

SALARY

Entry-level graduates, working full-time, can expect to earn $45,000 - $50,000 per year. According to the 2013 ASRT Salary Survey the average salary for a full-time MRI technologist is $68,384 annually.

ACCREDITATION

The Owens Magnetic Resonance Imaging Program is the only Associate Degree program in Ohio accredited by the Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Technology.

CLINICAL PARTNER TESTIMONIAL

"Owens helps to prepare students by training them on a simulator prior to the patient care experience. This is beneficial for students who come to the University of Michigan for training because they will have basic knowledge of MRI sequencing and imaging. Our vision is to allow students to train in our high volume and fast-paced environment so they will be ready to take on any challenge."
